Student Honor Pledge

Act with Honor. Honor the Pledge.

The University of Maryland Honor Pledge is a statement undergraduate and graduate students will be asked to write by hand and sign on all examinations, papers, and major assignments. The Honor Pledge is a community building ritual, initiated by students, designed to encourage teachers and students to reflect upon the University's core institutional value of academic integrity.

Professors who invite students to sign the Honor Pledge signify that there is an ethical component to teacher and learning. Students who write by hand and sign the Pledge affirm a sense of pride in the integrity of their work.

Student Honor Pledge:

“I pledge on my honor that I have not given or received any unauthorized assistance on this assignment/examination.”
